

His echocardiogram was unchanged from previous. It showed that his left ventricular function was acceptable and there is no obstruction from the tumour, either to the inflow or the outflow of the left ventricle.

Overall I am really pleased with his progress and the stability of his condition. We are planning to see him back in clinic in about a month's time. Up until then he should continue his medications and we are going to plan a 24-hour tape to be sent out prior to that. Furthermore mum was expressing her view on not immunising him which is something that I have objected to and I advised for immunisations. We will see him back in clinic in a month's time.

Kind regards.

Yours sincerely
